DÜSSELDORF – LOESCHE GmbH was successfully re-certified from 4 - 6 May according to ISO 9001.

The company based in Düsseldorf develops and produces machine and plant technology, in particular grinding plants and combined drying and grinding plants for the cement, steel, power station, mineral processing, chemical, refuse and mining industries.

With the now renewed certificate from LRQA Business Assurance, LOESCHE is certified that the revised quality management of the company also meets the requirements of ISO 9001:2015. ISO 9001 is the most widespread and most important standard and basis for international businesses.

LOESCHE GmbH was certified for the first time in 1998. Quality management is an integral component of the company's principles. Processes and services are constantly adapted to the new requirements of the globally active company.

"A functioning quality management is indispensable. Our customers expect innovative engineering, precise plant construction and reliable service. We can only render these services if we organise our internal processes in accordance with our specifications.

The certificate proves that we live the process as such and are constantly improving", explains Angelika Wollenweber, Head of Quality Management, Standards & Regulations.
